VOL. 5. NO. 40 — MONESSEN, PA., FRIDAY, AUGUST 10, 1906. — SIX CENTS THE WEEK

HEAVY STORM VISITED MONESSEN LAST NIGHT

Donner Avenue Looked Like a River.---Sewers Were Overtaxed and One Life Nearly Swept Away

Although the rain storm which visited Monessen last evening was one of the severest of the season, no great damage was done. As is usually the case the sewers were unable to carry off the great volumes of water which came down from the hills and as a result many cellars in the down town section were flooded. At Third street the sewer was stopped up with sand and refuse, and Third street looked like a mortar bed this morning. A gang of men was put to work early and they soon succeeded in clearing it away.

At Ninth street where grading and other boro work is being done, the water was damed up to several feet in depth, while Ninth street park resembles a miniature lake. At Fifth street the water also poured down from the hill district in torrents.

The opera house was the principal sufferer. The window of the front office is almost on a level with the ground and it is said that one hold accountable there the water poured in until the place was filled to a depth of several feet. It was first discovered by employees of the Electric Light Co., who were in the office of the Co., which is located on the ground floor of the building. Very little damage was done. At several points in town, the sewer traps were removed to allow the water to be carried away. At the corner of Fifth street and Donner avenue, the trap was lifted and no one left to guard it. Andy Kromarek a young lad about 10 years of age happened by and not noticing the place fell into the sewer. Officer Keppie was immediately on the scene and promptly fished the lad out with no more serious results than a bad scare.

Had the sewer inlet not been filled with debris the lad would have met an awful fate. No person but one authority should be allowed to lift a sewer trap and that one held accountable.

WILL BE REAL ARTICLE

Tomorrow's Valley League game at Athletic park between Monessen and Monongahela will probably be an exceedingly hot contest. The Vaughn will have several new players in the game and the local fans, are all anxious to see them play in their initial appearance. That they will do their prettiest goes without saying. Manager Wilson of the Monongahela's has given Manager Vaughn to understand that he will do his best to break up Monessen's winning streak and taken altogether a really for sure game can be expected. All go to the park.

Eli is Busy.

Eli Davidson seems to be the busiest man in Monessen at present, in fact he complains of being over worked. At present he is devoting most of his time to looking after the structural work of the new skating rink but in addition to that he is superintendent of construction at the new bridge at Warden and has had a great deal to say about the paving of West Schoonmaker avenue. As soon as the contract is let for the balance of the paving Eli says he is going to get help or he will not be able to stand the strain. He says the work must be done right.

PRETTY EUCHRE AT LAMB HOME

One of Monessen's pleasing social events was a prettily appointed euchre which was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Lamb on McKee avenue last evening in honor of their house guests, Mr. and Mrs O R Rumsey, of Adrian, Mich.

Progressive euchre furnished the principal entertainment while well rendered music helped to enliven the occasion. The ladies euchre prize a handsome bouquet, went to Miss Sadie Springer, while Dr Day and Dr Stewart tied for the gent'eman's prize. It was finally won by Dr Stewart. At a late hour an elegant lunch was served in the spacious dining rooms which were handsomely and tastefully decorated for the occasion.

Besides the guests of honor, those present were Dr. and Mrs. W. H Day, Dr. and Mrs Wm. Bigger, Dr and Mrs. W B Stewart, Misses Hallie Hancock, Clara Kelly, Laura Elliot, Mary Coleman, Sadie Springer, Messrs E C. Sattley, C L Schnick, H G Crane, D. S. Muckley, R. S. Kelly and J. Howard Kelly.

A Wonderful Feat.

Jaques, the clever magician at the Star Theatre has announced that he will allow Manager W McShaffery of the Star Theatre to nail him into a store box during this evening's performance and that he will make his escape in seven minutes. Jake Meyers bet $20 that the feat cannot be done and Jacques was quick to cover it.

Both bands will give concerts on the boat and at the Park. A first class Italian Orchestra will be furnished on the boat. 38 111

Attorney General's Office Acts.

Springfield, Mo., August, 9.—After hearing from a city officer of threats against members of the grand jury which indicated Hill Gooch and Does Galbraith, charged with the lynching of three negroes on April 14, Assistant Attorney General Kennish left today for Jefferson City to confer with Gov. Folk on the situation.

The threat, as told to Mr. Kennish, follows. "If one of those men who are on trial for "negroe killing" is convicted, there will be a rope hung to the light tower in the square for everyone of the members of the grand jury.

A PLEASANT EVENING

Is Spent at the Sherwin Home in Essen in Honor of Mr. Sherwin's Sister.

One of the pretty social happenings of the season was a party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs George Sherwin in Essen last evening in honor of Mr. Sherwin's sister, Miss Dolly. Quite a number of young people gathered and spent a highly enjoyable evening. The party from Monessen that was present, made the trip to the Sherwin home in a hay wagon. They were somewhat delayed in getting started owing to the rain storm, but nevertheless when they did arrive the slight inconvenience was soon forgotten and all entered heartily into the evening's amusements.

Games of all kinds were indulged in and music both vocal and instrumental helped to pass away the time. At a late hour a most delicious luncheon was served, after which the guests departed for their homes.

Those who composed the party from Monessen were Misses, Melzie Sibbitt, Hattie Penman, Lola and Maud Charles, Rhoda Armstrong, Carrie Shutterly and Anna Currie and Messers Elmer Anderson, James Sherwin, Jesse and Don McGowan, Earl Shutterly, John Anderson, Clyde Gregel and W. C. Foulk.

THE trial run of the Milwaukee has ended, but the trial run of the product that has made Milwaukee famous is one continuous vaudeville.

A Wireton chicken raiser has taught his fowls how to roost. From the standpoint of the man who loves fried chicken without paying for it, this information will come as a sad blow.

OLD men seventy years of age can be seen walking up and down Schoonmaker avenue waiting impatiently for the completion of the skating rink. Everybody seems to have the fever and if it keeps up, there will be no cobwebs gather on the skates.

OUT west no man dies content unless he has paid his newspaper subscription, for the editors have a way of squaring things in their obituary accounts. For instance an Indian Territory editor recently took the occasion of the death of a reader to write this: "Deceased was a mild mannered man, with a mouth for whiskey. He came here at night with another man's wife and joined the church at the first opportunity. He owed us $7 on the paper."

THE Washington Observer stands up and argues strongly in favor of Washington's no-license policy, and in that connection says that Washington has more people who own their own homes and more people with bank accounts than any licensed town of its size in the state. It is up to the people who argue that license is the one thing above all others to build up a town to explain Washington's prosperity. — Cannonsburg Notes.

Meters and Meetings

[Copyrighted, 1905, by M. M. Cunningham.]

"I want to see the regular clerk." said Caverly, peering through the complaint window and wondering how it was that such an entirely charming young woman could work for so heartless a corporation as the gas company.

"I am the regular clerk," was the smiling response as she reached for the slip Caverly had half thrust through the window and glanced at the name.

"I want the one who gets the mail complaints," he stammered. The girl laughed musically.

"I am that top sided, frozen hearted person who would not answer your letter," she insisted. "You see, in your heat you forgot to give any address."

Caverly thought of some of the other and more personal allusions he had made and groaned. Until then he had rather prided himself upon his ability at invective.

"I didn't know that you were—that is, that the complaint clerk was a woman," he stammered.

"I didn't think you do," she laughed. "But I'm used to that sort of thing. I had a man over at your place yesterday."

"Did he have an ax?" asked Caverly. "It's the only way to get the best of that meter."

"The gas was turned on in the oven of the stove," she said smilingly. "It must have been flowing for weeks."

"But I don't use the oven," he protested. "I'm a bachelor, and I just get my breakfasts there."

"Perhaps when you were cooking the modest egg," she laughed, "you brushed against the lower cocks."

Caverly blushed. He had been proud of that line. "When I poach the modest egg or fry the humble rasher, the meter straightway charges me enough gas to prepare a dinner for a family of six, which, thank heaven, I do not possess." Now he thought it sounded very silly

"I must have smelled it, if it was," he argued. The girl shook her head.

"There is a pipe connection with the chimney," she reminded. "It never got into the room."

"Then I guess it's up to me," he said slowly.

"Yes," she assented, "$7.20 for last month, $8.40 this month. Pay at the last window."

"I'm sorry to have given you all this trouble," he said awkwardly, "and said—er—those things, you know."

"That is right; I understand," she said. "I hope you will have no more trouble."

"I hope I do," he announced, ambiguously, as he raised his hat and went in search of the cashier's window, "but I won't write letters."

After that Caverly's meter seemed suddenly to have become the most troublesome in town. Two and three times a week he called with some complaint that somehow never seemed to need more than a word of advice.

Meantime he had discovered the name of the young woman and was searching everywhere for some one who knew her, so that he might seek an introduction. It was several weeks before he discovered that his mother out in Chicago was an intimate friend of Grace Winston's aunt, and through this medium he was able to meet the girl conventionally. He lost no time in asking her to accept an invitation to a little dinner which in some way might make up for the trouble he had caused her.

"You should go to boarding," she advised one evening as they lingered over the demitasse. They had repeated the dinner. "You would have no more trouble with the meter then."

"I've had very little since I met you," he declared, "and I hate boarding houses."

"Why not get married?" she smiled. "That would solve the problem."

"I know it," he agreed. "I've got the very girl in mind too. I haven't asked her yet, but I mean to soon."

"It is a very good idea," she said coldly. "With a wife you would be more settled down and not have to depend upon restaurants."

"Oh, I don't know about that," he demurred. "I should want to have our little dinner occasionally even after I am married."

"I think you have a rather poor opinion of me," she said.

"By 'our little dinners' I meant my wife's and mine," he said explicitly.

The girl flushed. "I beg your pardon," she said.

Caverly veiled his amusement and satisfaction. "You see," he added, "I shall have plenty of time then. I shan't have to watch the gas meter so carefully."

"No?"

"No; there won't be so attractive a complaint clerk at the gas company's office—then," he said pointedly.

* * * * * * *

A month afterward the same two sat at opposite sides of the same table.

"You see, we are having our little dinners, after all," Caverly teased.

"Yes; and the gas bills are only half as big; but I am careful to do the complaining myself, if there is any to be done. It's a dangerous thing to let a man do." HARRY WINTHROP.

A Form of Speech.

Suitor (nervously)—Sir, I ask your daughter's hand—

Father (quizzically)—Well, you can't have it. Do you suppose I'm going to have a one handed girl hanging around me for the balance of my days?—Bohemian.

How He Came to Suicide

[Original.]

"By the bye, Talbot, that autocratic, high stepping Miss Peachblow that you were thinking of marrying has opened an art store. That girl ought to have had a fortune. She is just fitted to be the head of a gentleman's house."

Walter Talbot, who was brushing his hair before a mirror, struggling to get the part straight and in a place to suit him, turned and looked at his friend inquiringly. He admitted that Miss Peachblow was an old flame of his, and had it not been for her poverty he might have married her. It had not been necessary that he should be deprived of his love on this account, for he had inherited some means and was doing very well in his profession. He had gone so far as to become engaged to her, but on thinking the matter over had concluded that in this commercial age there was nothing practical in mating with a poor woman. So he had broken the engagement. He had not since met any one, rich or poor, whom he had cared to marry and had remained a bachelor.

"Where is her shop?" he asked, resuming his toilet.

The location was given, and Talbot thought that he would go into the store and see how his old flame would look behind the counter. It was several years since he had seen her, and she might feel embarrassed at meeting him. As for Talbot, his equanimity was not easily disturbed. The next afternoon on returning from his office he chose a different route from his usual one and stopped at a shop which bore a sign "Maria Peachblow." Seeing his former fiancee engaged with a customer, he waited near the door. Miss Peachblow turned her eyes toward him. She did not start. She did not blush. She simply cast her eyes again upon a picture she was trying to sell.

Talbot was sure she had recognized him and was surprised that she gave no evidence of the fact. For the first time in the presence of a woman he felt uncomfortable. If she persisted in treating him as a stranger his visit would not be a pleasant one. He wished he had not come. It wouldn't do for him to back out now, so he leaned on a counter and sucked the head of his walking stick nervously The customer, a lady, was in no hurry to choose, and it was half an hour after Talbot entered the shop before Miss Peachblow made a sale, took the lady's address and promised to send the picture the next day. Then as the customer went out Miss Peachblow advanced with that stereotyped look on her face by which salespeople ask without the trouble of speaking, "What can I do for you?"

Talbot stood trying to smile, but a forced smile, especially when one is badly disgruntled, results in something not unlike a grimace. Conscious of this, Talbot flushed. The lady noticed neither of these conditions. She simply said:

"Will you look at some pictures?"

"Yes—no—thank you—if you have anything that you think will please me."

Miss Peachblow turned and led the way to large portfolios in racks and, opening them, said:

"Here are some fine engravings. These are water colors I can especially recommend. In this one you will find some photographs of celebrated pictures."

Talbot took hold of one of the portfolios, and his hand trembled This by no means tended to restore his equanimity. He wanted to break through the invisible mask, shield or whatever it was that she held between them Had he come with any definite purpose he could easily have stated it, but he had not. He had broken his engagement through selfish motives, and for the first time he began to realize how selfish they were. He had come to the girl he had jilted with motives of idle curiosity, and he began to feel that he had been a fool to step in where an angel would have feared to tread.

If Miss Peachblow had shown any relish in her revenge the spell by which Mr. Talbot was held at arm's length would have been broken. She did not She treated him as she would have treated any other customer.

"I think this will do," said Talbot, selecting a landscape, "and this," a battle piece. "I'll hang them together."

"The landscape is soothing, the battle piece exciting. They will make a good contrast. Will you have them framed?"

"Certainly; frame them."

"I will show you some samples."

"Never mind the samples. I would prefer to leave the framing to your taste."

"But the prices vary. We have frames at prices from 20 cents to $5 a foot. I think you had better instruct me in this."

"Put on a suitable frame, no matter what the cost."

"Very well, I will do my best and send them. Let me see. This is Monday. Will Thursday do?"

"Yes, Thursday. Any day."

Meanwhile Miss Peachblow was looking for an order book, and, finding one, took up a pencil.

"Address, please."

"Walter B. Talbot, 126 Orchard avenue."

"T-a-l or T-o-l?"

"B-o-t or b-u-t?"

"B-o-t."

"Thank you very much."

"Send the bill with the goods."

The lady, with a slight bend of the head, turned away to wait on another customer who had entered, and Talbot departed.

Six months later Talbot shot himself for love of Miss Peachblow.

ELLSWORTH EMERSON.

G. B. Burhans Testifies after four Years.

G. B. Burham of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I'm glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble." Sold by Kirks Drug Store.

War Against Consumption.

All nations are endeavoring to check the ravages of consumption, the "white plague" that claims so many victims each year. Foley's Honey and Tar cures coughs and colds perfectly and you are in no danger of consumption. Do not risk your health by taking some unknown preparation when Foley's Honey and Tar is safe and certain in results. The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by Kirks Drug Store

Was in Poor Health for Years.

Ira W. Kelley of Mansfield, Pa., writes: "I was in poor health for two years, suffering from kidney and bladder trouble, and spent considerable money consulting physicians without obtaining any marked benefit, but was cured by Foley's Kidney Cure, and I desire to add my testimony that it may be the cause of restoring the health of others." Refuse substitutes. Sold by Kirks Drug Store.

If you will make inquiry it will be a a revelation to you how many succumb to kidney or bladder trouble in one form or another. If the patient is not beyond medical aid, Foley's Kidney Cure will cure. It never disappoints.

During the summer kidney irregularities are often cause by excessive drinking or being overheated: Attend to the kidneys at once by using Foley's Kidney Cure Sold by Kirks Drug Store.

REACH THE SPOT.

To cure an aching back.
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Charles Bierbach, stone contractor, living at 2625 Chestnut St., Erie, Pa., says: "For two years I had kidney trouble, and there was such a severe pain through my loins and limbs that I could not stoop or straighten up without great pain, had difficulty in getting about and was unable to rest at night, arising in the morning tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were irregular and deposited a heavy sediment. Doctors treated me for rheumatism, but failed to help me. I lost all confidence in medicine, but Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me so quickly and so thoroughly that I gladly made a statement to that effect for publication. This was in 1898, and during the six years which have elapsed I have never known Doan's Kidney Pills to fail."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Bierbach will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

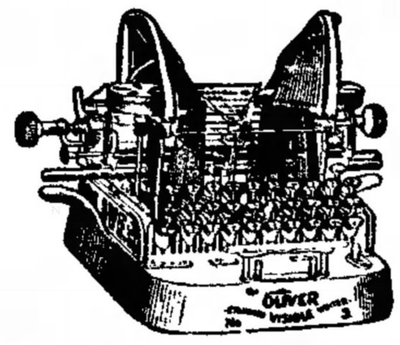
THIS TYPEWRITER DELIVERS THE GOODS

It's the Oliver—the Standard Visible Writer.

The Oliver Typewriter is just like an athlete stripped for a race.



It is free from unnecessary multiplicity of wires and springs

No net work of flimsy keys to get tied into hard knots

The nimble fingered stenographer can put talk into type with this machine just as rapidly as she takes your dictation.

For no matter how swiftly she writes, she can see just what she's doing

The keyboard is so wonderfully responsive to the touch of the finger tips that speed comes without effort.

The factors that make for speed are its visible writing, its light, elastic key-touch, and it's all 'round simplicity. It has the fewest possible wearing points, and it prints with a downward stroke.

The OLIVER Typewriter

THE STANDARD VISIBLE WRITER

is a flawless piece of mechanism, combining the strength of tested steel with the perfect adjustment of the works of a watch. You can use an Oliver a life time and the type will not lose alignment.

It never suffers from nervous prostration; requires only a little oil and plenty of exercise to keep it at the highest point of efficiency.

The hum of Oliver Typewriters is heard in the most progressive business houses in the land. Sales increasing at a phenomenal rate. Get acquainted with the Oliver! Write for the Oliver book—we send it free with our compliments.

Hunger Causes Family Woe.

Because his young wife after working all day, refused to work longer until she had something to eat, her husband, Henry Wilson, of Monongahela, is alleged to have beaten her and kicked her down stairs. Mayor Elwood held Wilson for court on charges of surety of the peace and assault and battery.

Wilson has been conducting a cleaning and pressing establishment. Since his marriage three months ago his wife has assisted him. She says she had worked all day yesterday without anything to eat and when she quit to get the evening meal, her husband attacked her.

CARR MAY BE ELECTED.

Bitter Rivalry For Presidency of International Order of Eagles.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 9—A bitter rivalry between two men from the middle west for the presidency of the International Order of Eagles, may result in the honor going to W. N. Carr of Uniontown, Pa. There is only one eastener in the field as yet, and the Uniontown man is being pitted against J. B. Barratt of South Omaha and W. S. Wadsworth, Council Bluffs, two places only a few miles apart across the Iowa-Nebraska line.

The westerners have been engaged in a bitter contest which has caused so much trouble in the west that in the shuffle the Pennsylvanian is likely to win out easily. The rule against the reelection of the head of the order for a second term prevents the candidacy of H. D. Davis of Cleveland. David A. Wilson of Harrisburg was one of today's arrivals at the committee meeting, being a member of the Credentials Committee.

A. C. Ball of York, Pa. was another prominent Eagle to come here. Pittsburg will have a big delegation here and like the West Virginia Eagles will work for the success of Norfolk, for the 1907 meeting.

THE PRIBILOF ISLANDS.

Where No White Man May Land Unless He Has a Permit.

Unalaska resembles other northern stations, having warehouses, docks, the inevitable Greek church and a score of wooden cabins. Whalers leave here for the arctic regions.

Dutch Harbor is a station for our revenue fleet. There is much coming and going of ships of all nations. There is quite a formidable fleet, and only two ships out of twelve carry colors of the same country.

Just before entering the harbor one notices a detached rock high against the side of the cliff. It bears a striking resemblance to a Russian priest in full robes. Touched by the sunset light, he seems to stand blessing the harbor.

Sailing north out into Bering sea, one looks back at the desolate, silent, treeless islands, which seem to wall the edge of the world. Hundreds of miles west they run toward Vladivostok.

Two hundred and forty miles north of Unalaska are the Pribilof islands, not large, but the greatest seal islands in the world. There are many fur seals around the shores of Bering sea and the Aleutian islands, but the great mass of them are bred on the Pribilof group. No white man is permitted to land on these breeding grounds without a permit signed by the secretary of the treasury of the United States.—Outdoor Life.

The Pace of the Camel.

As a matter of fact, and in spite of its having carried Mohammed in four leaps from Jerusalem to Mecca, seven miles an hour is the camel's limit, nor can it maintain this rate over two hours. Its usual speed is five miles an hour—a slow pace, beyond which it is dangerous to urge it, lest, as Asiatics say, it might break its heart and die literally on the spot. When a camel is pressed beyond this speed and is spent it kneels down, and not all the wolves in Asia will make it budge again. The camel remains where it kneels, and where it kneels it dies. A fire under its nose is useless.—Times of India.

He Had His Wish.

Carl Schurz had no consideration for hypocrites or pretenders. Upon literary pretenders he was particularly severe. At a dinner in New York one night a man of wealth who had written a volume of poems sneered at politics.

"I wouldn't give a plenyune," he said, "for a senatorship or a cabinet office. To be even president wouldn't tempt me. I, for my part, would rather be known any day as a third rate poet than a first rate statesman."

"Well, aren't you?" said Mr. Schurz.

Minerals in Water.

Lead or zinc ore can be so finely pulverized that a tablespoonful may be mixed in a bucket of clear water without being visible to the naked eye. When thus powdered the particles are so minute that it often takes half an hour for them to settle to the bottom of a vessel full of water. This fact makes it evident that a stream may carry large quantities of minerals rich in metals.

Neatly Turned.

"Now, Pat," said a magistrate to an old offender, "what brought you here again?" "Two policemen, sor," was the laconic reply. "Drunk, I suppose?" queried the magistrate. "Yes, sor," said Pat; "both av thim."

The Worst.

"Doctor, I must positively insist upon knowing the worst."

"Well, I think my bill will be about $100."

Everybody exclaims against ingratitude. Are there so many benefactors?—Bougeart.
